BEE FRIENDLY

Denver Golf's environmentally friendly initiatives

This month our Bee Friendly program highlights the Harvard Gulch Vegetable Gardens!

Starting in 2016, the surrounding landscape around the Harvard Gulch clubhouse was converted to multiple vegetable gardens. Every year, the produce from these gardens has provided generous donations to the local community. We grow about 40-50 different vegetables and herbs. From June through September the garden flourishes. We estimate about 500 lbs per year are being donated in total. In 2018 we were fortunate to have some local children from surrounding recreation centers tour our gardens and learn about vegetable gardening as well as some golf instruction. We also plant pollinator gardens throughout the vegetable landscape to provide food and habitat for all types of pollinators.

COURSE UPDATES

City Park Redesign Updates

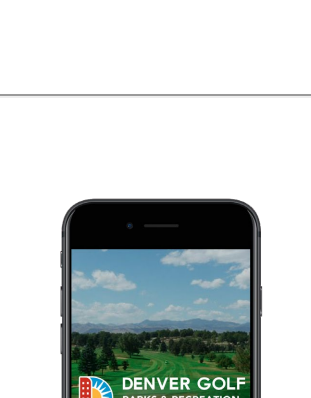

During major storms, the redesigned City Park Golf Course will temporarily hold and slow floodwaters while protecting the course from damage. The detention area is an essential part of Platte to Park Hill: Stormwater Systems. It will be integrated into an updated course design that will be even more enjoyable for golfers and help protect some of the city's most at-risk neighborhoods from flooding.

Integrating stormwater detention in golf courses is a very common practice. Outside of major storms, the area will remain a dry, fully-functioning golf course.

After considering technical merits and community input, City Park Golf Course was selected for water detention because it will protect significantly more homes and businesses; enhances an existing city asset; reduces the need for private property acquisition; and provides for future stormwater needs.

City Park Golf Course will reopen once the turf is established. Weather plays a significant role in turf establishment and maturation. Denver Golf wants to ensure that the playing surfaces at City Park Golf Course are mature enough to endure play without damaging the golf course. Denver Golf provides great playing conditions and a positive experience to our guests
